SCHOOL PERFORMANCE GRADES BREAKDOWN

- 80% of the weight of the school performance grade is based on test results from end-of-grade, end-of-course, graduation rate, and college/workplace readiness measures.
- 20% of the weight of the school performance grade is based on school growth as measured by SAS EVAAS (Education Value-Added Assessment System).
- The performance scores are converted to a 100-point scale and then used to determine a school performance grade of A, B, C, D or F. Recent legislation was passed allowing performance grades to continue to be based on a 15-point grading scale. More than 30% of North Carolina's approximately 2,500 public schools received a school performance grade of A or B for the 2018-2019 school year.
